INDEPENDENT.

The New York Freeman's Journal and Catholic Register of the 10th inst. contains a very able and somewhat lengthy address on the subject of temperance by Rt Rev Dr Persico, bishop of Savannah, Georgia. It is addressed to the members of the Catholic church comprising his diocese, and is worthy the attention of the good of all denominations and classes. It seems hardly right to mutilate it by taking only part of the appeal, but we must do so for want of space—for it is good, excellent, all the way through. We make the following extracts:

EPISCOPAL EXHORTATION FOR LENT.

The approach of the holy season of Lent demands that we should impart the salutary instructions we owe to you, by reason of that office which it has pleased God to intrust to us; and we find no subject more suited to this penitential time, than that of temperance and sobriety. Temperance in eating, and much more in drinking, has at all times been regarded as a great virtue. Hence the Saviour charges his disciples: "Take heed to yourselves, lest perhaps your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness." Luke xxi 34. This is a virtue necessary at any time, and on all occasions, and whosoever at any time commits intemperance violates his duty; he is guilty of an immoral act, and also injures his body; hence the ancient warlike nations were particularly careful to train up their youth to the practice of this virtue, as the best safeguard of their mental energies, their bodily health, and their national institutions. Whilst temperance flourished in the great ancient republics, their liberties were protected, and it was only under the superincumbent bulk of luxury and intemperance, they were extinguished—for the natural consequences of this indulgence is enervation of the mind and sottish carelessness.

* * * Only a short time ago a voice was raised in the north against the dreadful vice of drunkenness, a voice full of heavenly wisdom, and carrying with it unction and truth, and which has filled every heart with a holy horror of this vice and deep love for the virtue of temperance. I mean the graphic and instructive lecture delivered by the learned Bishop of Newark, before the Catholic Total Abstinence Society in New Jersey. That lecture stamps a character, and dates a movement, and we fully and cordially unite our humble and earnest solicitations with those of the venerable prelate, while we cannot refrain from extracting a few of his remarks, which are as follows:

"We are all only too well acquainted with the evil consequences to individuals and to society which result from indulgence in this vice. If each one in the audience were to relate his simple experience it would make the best temperance lecture imaginable. We have all seen the bright, ruddy cheek of youth turned by it in a short time into pallor and decay. We have seen man created in God's own image, endowed with reason and intelligence, debased by its effects lower than the brute. It is in the family, however that it works its worst ruin. The Christian family has been, and should always be, the source of everything that is good; and when God's grace reigns there, it becomes, and even in the house of the poor, a little paradise upon earth. But a drunken father or mother turns it into a hell—a place of anger, and strife, and misery, and crime.

"Many parents by their drunken orgies poison the minds of their children; they neglect their training and allow them to grow up as savages and become what are called street arabs, pests of society. Such parents will be held to a dreadful responsibility by Almighty God. It is safer for all parents to try and abandon the use of these dangerous beverages altogether and exclude them from their homes, that the tender children so loved by Jesus Christ be not scandalized and their young hearts corrupted by those who should shield them from all harm. Acts of self-abnegation such as this, for the sake of our fellow creatures, will bring the grace of God and his blessing upon us in all relations. Most of what is sold under the name of liquor in this country is really poison. The inordinate use of it for a short time will shake the strongest constitution."

And then the learned bishop points out the only remedy effectually to arrest this great evil, and says:

"No array of figures, no statistics of crime and misery will frighten man from this vice, unless you touch their consciences with a sense of the sin of the thing, of the offence it gives to God, of the misery it brings to the soul—it being one of the sins that excludes from the kingdom of heaven—and the necessity of prayer, penance, and the graces of the sacraments, if they would strengthen themselves to fight the good fight and overcome it."

"After this, beloved brethren, we conclude this instruction with our most earnest solicitations to you, and fervent prayers to the Almighty, that this great evil may be effectually arrested in its calamitous ways, and that Christians will observe the law of temperance and sobriety, and thus they will secure their peace on earth and eternal felicity hereafter.

SOME MANIFESTATIONS.

In these times when so much is said about spiritualism, although I do not believe in the science, yet it brings to my recollection facts of my early boyhood. There lived in our neighborhood a man by the name of Serva, who combined the trades of house joiner, cabinet maker and undertaker. My father was not a mechanic yet he handled all kinds of tools very well I was then about eight years old. So one morning in January, 1861, Mr. Serva, who lived about one mile from us, came over and asked my father whether he could help him in the shop that day; 'for,' said he, 'I have two coffins to make to-day.' Then father in surprise asked, 'why, who is dead?' I did not hear of any person being sick!' 'Well,' said Serva, 'I don't know for whom myself, but one is a grown person.' Then father laughed and said 'that would do!' 'But,' said Serva, 'I am in earnest, and if you will come and help me I will tell you a secret.' So father agreed to help him and went over after breakfast, Serva being already at work. About nine o'clock a man living about two miles off called to get a coffin made for his neighbor's child which had died the previous night. Serva told him all right that he had it under way. 'But, said the messenger, 'I have the measure.' Serva took the measure observing that he always made coffins three inches longer than the measure, at the same time applying the measure to the small coffin under way, finding it exactly three inches longer than the measure.

Before this man left there came another person living six miles distant, with a measure in his hand for a man who died the night before. But on seeing two coffins under way, observed that he guessed he was too late. When Mr. Serva said 'no, that is for you,' pointing to the larger one; and on applying the measure found it just three inches longer than the measure. The man left directions about the delivery, etc., then went away. They worked on them until both coffins were finished, stained and varnished, then sat down by the stove. (By the way, I went over in the afternoon to stay, and come home with father.) Then father said, 'now let me hear your secret.' 'Well,' said Mr. Serva, 'when I first began to make coffins I would hear strange rappings on the foot board of my bed at night several times, which disturbed me some. I think on the third or fourth repetition I recollected that the rappings always came the night preceding an order for a coffin. Afterwards I took particular notice that the rappings always foreboded the making of a coffin. So one night as I was lying awake somewhat restless, I distinctly heard the three ominous raps. By this time I became pretty used to my nocturnal visitor. So I called out, just leave your measure in the shop on the bench; you will find chalk there—then turned round and went to sleep. In the morning when I went to the shop, there on the bench in faint outlines was chalked the size of the coffin. And last night, continued Mr. Serva, I was awakened twice within an hour with these three distinct raps, and each time I said, leave your measure in the shop.'

Then Mr. Serva went and got a broom and swept off the work bench, and there in very faint outlines were two coffins marked off, one within the other. 'There,' said he, 'is the conclusion of my story.' But poor fellow! before the opening of the following spring, one morning Mr. Serva was found a corpse in his bed, and on going to his shop, they found a new coffin, ready made, standing on the work bench. So poor Serva was buried in a coffin of his own make. Mr. Serva was a bachelor, and a very quiet and kind neighbor.

It was supposed he got his notice for a coffin as usual, with the measure and that he made it himself without knowing who for, as he just the day before his death, promised to do a job for his neighbor next week. J A R

The Peoria (Ill.) Review prints this plain story:

Springfield has had a sensation. A former state official and a man who has occupied high positions, not only in the commonwealth but in the nation, has been on a spree for some days in her classic precincts. On Friday he visited Bunn's banking house and demanded $50. It was refused him, whereupon he abused the teller like a pickpocket, and had to be ejected. He visited a whisky saloon and asked for a drink of whisky. The bar tender told him he had none, whereupon he grew so violent that he was put out by force. Drunken, friendless, and outcast—such is the fate of one who aspired to be president of the United States. He is now a perfect wreck, and even his friends have come to the conclusion that the only service he can render is to die. Whisky has swamped him as it has many another. —His name is Richard Yates, formerly senator from Illinois.

HISTORY OF MOWERS AND REAPERS.

Most people take it for granted that reapers and mowers are of quite a modern invention, but such a conclusion is far from being correct. Others have supposed that some American Yankee first conceived the idea of constructing a machine for cutting grain with horses or oxen; but history informs us that reapers were in successful operation before Christopher Columbus discovered the western continent; and that the sickle and the scythe, in some of the oriental countries, had been superseded by reapers that were worked by one or two oxen in the early part of the Christian era. The first accounts of a machine to reap grain appears to be that given by Pliny the elder, who was born, it has been supposed, about the 23d year of our Lord 53? more than 1800 years ago. This historian says: There are various methods of reaping grain. In the extensive fields of the lowlands of Gaul, vans of a large size, with projecting teeth on the forward edge, are driven on two wheels through the standing corn (oats and barley are called corn), by an ox yoked in a reverse position, with the machine forward of the ox. In this manner the ears (or what we call heads of barley or panicles of oats) are torn off and fall into the van. In some places the stalks are severed in the middle by sickles, and the ears, or heads of grain, are stripped off between two hatchets

Paliadius, an eastern ecclesiastical writer, gives the following account of reapers in A. D. 391. He says: In the Gallic lowlands they employ a more expeditious method of reaping, requiring the assistance of a single ox during the whole of harvest time. A cart is constructed which moves on two wheels. A low box of boards is constructed on the wheels, and the boards in front are lower than the rest. Behind this cart two shafts (or thills) are fastened, like the rods of a sedan chair. To this an ox is yoked and harnessed, with his head turned toward the cart, and the ears, or heads of grain are gathered in the box, the driver regulating the elevation and depression of the teeth with a lever. The next account of a reaper is given in proposals submitted in Britain, in 1785, for constructing a reaper. This machine was propelled forward by a horse or ox, cliping the heaps of grain and depositing them in a large box, which was emptied into a store room when full.

In the details of this machine a drive wheel, pulleys, pinions, tooth wheels, and iron combs or teeth are spoken of. In 1799 another reaper is spoken of as being propelled forward by a horse or ox hitched behind it, which cut and laid the grain in a swath on one side of the reaper. A boy could manage the machine, and one horse could cut a swath about two feet wide, or rather more than could be reaped in the same time by six men with sickles. In 1806 Mr. Gladstone produced a reaper for cutting grain, delivering the straw into gavels to be bound. In 1807 Mr. Plinchett constructed a machine in which a horse drew the machine, instead of pushing it forward, according to the usual custom of operating reapers. After this period many inventors entered the field with reapers of an improved construction, and in 1825 Mr Mann, under the anspices of the Highland Society of Scotland, brought forward a new reaper which could reap ten acres in ten hours. In 1820 or 1828, Thomas Chadwick, an ingenious mechanic of Genoe, Cayuga county, New York, constructed a rude mower to be drawn by one horse. This machine consisted of a wheel lying close to the ground horizontally, having numerous scythe like knives extending out from the periphery like the spokes of a wheel. A drive wheel imparted the necessary motion to this wheel, armed with numerous scythes. This machine proved to be a failure.

In 1830 a mowing machine was produced, and soon after a combined reaper and mower is spoken of. About that time the celebrated McCormick reaper entered the field—astonishing American as well as the farmers of the Old World. From that time to the present day reapers and mowers of innumerable forms have come to light many of which ended in total failure, while others have proved a triumphant success.

Although most of the mowers and reapers that are manufactured extensively seem to be almost as perfect as machines can be, still there is room for further improvement in many of the working parts of some of the machines, and though there are many excellent implements in the Old World the United States beats the whole world in the line of mowers and reapers. Our mowers and reapers work beautifully. No fault can be found with their work.

Fortunes have been expended in bringing some of them to their present state of perfection. No talent nor time nor experiment, nor money, have been spared in bringing out a most perfect labor saving implement. Many men have invested all they were worth in stock for making a machine that would beat the world, and met with a grevious failure, simply because they did not understand what was requsite in order to make a perfect machine. The reader will doubtless inquire Which is the best? No man is able to answer that satisfactorily. The Buckeye, manufactured by C. Aultman & Co., of Canton, Ohio, and Adriancet & Platt, New York City, as a mower and reaper, according to the decisions of committees at trials of mowing and reaping, stands without a superior.—Steubenville Gazette.

THE MAMMOTH CAVE OUTDONE.

The Kansas City times says several gentlemen recently explored a cave lately discovered in south eastern Missouri. The entrance is through a volcanic fissure, seven feet wide by twenty feet in length, which at a distance of a hundred yards terminates in a room named by the explorers 'The Bat Room,' from the thousands of bats that swarmed within its dark and hidden recesses; they flew about in swarms making a terrible noise in the arched roof above. The room has three sides each with an aperture opening into smaller caverns or side rooms. Its dimensions are fifty by one hundred and thirty feet, the ceiling being about twenty feet from the floor. From this room a hall, four hundred yards in length, leads to a still larger room in the shape of a horse shoe, which the explorers say nature must certainly have intended for a church, since the roof is arched in purely Gothic style, with dome and columns, and, to finish off and make complete, a pulpit near the centre.

The walls of this magnificient cavern are one hundred feet high, but one of the most remarkable features about it is a fountain of pure water, four feet in diameter. Northward of this is a room sixty feet wide, and almost filled with glitering stalactites, which hang in curiously formed pendants from the roof. To the south of this is another room which should be named the 'bottomless pit,' since it apparently has neither bottom sides nor roof. The darkness within this place is appalling. Turning to the east the party walked a distance of about a quarter of a mile, when they came to a flight of natural steps, forty or fifty in number, terminating in a wide platform, the entrance into a mammoth hall, supported by Corinthian pillars of various thickness and endless in number, all white as snow and glistening as though studded with millions of diamonds. This hall is estimated to be two hundred feet in width, and communicates with a number of passages leading off in various directions, none of which have yet been explored.

Proceeding on their way the explorers found a river of running water, issuing no one knows where, and going no one knows where. It is about fifty feet wide and three feet deep. The party followed its course down stream to the falls, where the water goes roaring over a precipice into the darkness below.

Explorations on a lake showed that the noise was made by a huge water fall, where the water falls a distance of fifty feet. The lake is circular in shape, and has an visable outlet for water. It is about one hundred acres in extent. There were eight or ten dark passages found upon the banks of the lake, leading in all directions, but the guide lost his courage and refused to go further. The party were then about eight or ten miles from their starting point. They were in the cave forty three hours.

A RELIC OF COLONIAL TIMES.

The Belair (Md) Ægis has the following appreciative notice of a relic of the olden time: Mr. J. G Lucky, of this county, while overhauling an old secretary purchased at a sale, discovered a secret drawer, on opening which were found five or six hundred dollars in money, chiefly old state bank bills. It also contained some specimens of continental currency, one of the oldest and most curious of which is of the denomination of twenty shillings, bears the date of June 1st, 1759, and was printed as it stated, by 'B. Franklin and D Hill.' It is about three inches square, the face of it bearing this inscription:

This indented bill shall pass current for twenty shillings within the government of the counties of New Castle, Kent and Sessex on Delaware, according to an act of Assembly of the said government, made in the thirty second year of the reign of our sovereign lord King George II.

On the reverse is a rude representation of a tobacco plant and a lion rampant, with the ominious warning, 'To counterfeit is death.'

Looking back to the time when this note was issued from the press, a strange contrast with the present day is presented. No visions of its future greatness and prosperity had at that day dawned upon the minds of the quiet citizens of Baltimore, for what is now that great metropolis was then only a quiet village of thirty or forty houses, Jones' Falls was not then the turbid source of contention or wrangling as of late, but rippled musically through green meadows and leafy coverts, finally mingling its pure, clear water with those of the Patasp sco.

A natural curiosity exists in Decatur, Ill., in the shape of a dog that never barked in his life, but, instead of indulging in the vocal exercises common to the canine family, each morning imitates the crowing of a rooster. His owner accounts for this strange peculiarity by stating that the dog was born and bred in the country, and from his earliest pup hood was separated from all other curs, enjoying only the companionship of barnyard fowls. Hearing no other sounds so frequently as the crowing of the cocks; and doubtless never knowing that his species enjoyed the sole ownership of another and different sort of music, he began to imitate the matutinal exercises of his feathered companions, in which he at last acquired a proficiency which surprises and charms every one who has had the felicity of listening to his performances.

The postal card system has been in operation for several months in Canada, and has proved as popular there as in Great Britain, where it originated. Upon the face of the card are ruled lines for the address and the stamp. The reverse is blank, with space sufficient to write twelve or eighteen lines of correspondence. The cards are used for many purposes, and are rapidly taking the place of printed circulars, for mail distribution, as they are much cheaper, and save the trouble and expense of folding, and also the cost of envelopes. They are freely used for the purposes of correspondence where privacy is unnecessary, and letter writing in the dominion had been greatly stimulated by their introduction. An almost indelible pencil is used, and as it has become a custom for nearly everybody to keep his pockets supplied with the cards, communications are jotted down and thrown into the letter boxes in the street and at railway stations as commonly as letters are written in the office or dwelling under the old system. Mr. Hill, of New Jersey, has introduced in congress a bill providing for the issue of cards on a similar system here.

Are 'Bitters' intoxicating? So thought the police of Boston when they seized a quantity of the 'Jockey Club' variety. The inventor and proprietor swore that his 'bitters' were not only highly medicinal, but that they might be considered a temperance beverage; as they contained only alcohol enough to prevent decomposition. Notwithstanding testimony in proof of this, the 'Bitters' were held by the court to be an illegal fluid, though the case was taken up on appeal. There is in the market great quantities of fluid nastiness advertised as 'Bitters,' all containing alcohol, and all bought and consumed for the sake of the alcohol which they contain. If they possessed a tithe of the medical efficacy which is claimed for them, there would be no more deaths by disease in the world. Some of them, save for the spirits, are inert; some of them are noxious; and the less anybody takes of them the more likely he will be to get well or to keep so.

Every man who is obliged to work for his living, should make it a point to lay up a little money for that rainy day which we are all liable to encounter when least expected. The best way to do this is to open an account with the savings bank. Accumulated money is always safe; it is always ready for use when needed. Scrape together five dollars, make your deposit, receive your bank book, and then resolve to deposit a given sum, small though it be, once a month, or once a week, according to the circumstances. Nobody knows without trying how easy a thing it is to save money when an account is opened with a bank. With such an account a man feels a desire to enlarge his deposit. It gives him lessons in frugality and economy, weans him from habits of extravagance, and is the best guard in the world against intemperance, dissipation, and vice.

Hon John Eaton, jr., Commissioner of education, has prepared a series of statistics to be embodied in his annual report, setting forth the relation of education to crime in the New England states. From this appears, first, that eighty per cent of the criminals in those states have no education, or not sufficient to serve them a valuable purpose in life; second, eighty to ninety per cent of the criminals have never learned any trade, nor are they master of any skilled labor; third, not far from seventy five per cent of the crimes committed are by persons of foreign extract, born themselves abroad, or their parents; fourth, eighty to ninety per cent of the juvenile offenders are from idle, ignorant, vicious and drunken homes.

The following is the wool clip of the United States for the year ending June 1st, 1870, as returned to the census office:

New England states,	6,643,863
Middle states	17,991,085
North Western states,	48,745,504
Border states,	9,744,253
Cotton states,	12,472,381

Ohio returns 20,539,643 lbs; California, 11, 391, 743 lbs; New York, 10,599,225. These figures show that the wool clip of Ohio is largely in excess of that of any other state.

Manners, says the eloquent Edmund Burke are of more importance than laws. Upon them, in a great measure, the laws depend. The laws can touch us here and there, now and then. Manners are what vex or soothe, rankle or debase, by a constant, steady uniform, insensible operation, like that of the air we breathe in. They give their whole form and color to our lives. According to their quality they sour mankind, they supply them, or they totally destroy them.

Massillon, Wednesday, February 21

For a long time the manner of selecting jurors has been a source of complaint, often quite loud and emphatic, as the practice is open to severe criticism if not condemnation. When a juror takes his place in the panel he is asked by the judge if he has read or made himself acquainted with the case to be tried, and if the answer is in the affirmative he is almost always challenged by one side or the other as unfit to sit in judgment, as it is taken for granted he has his mind made up. In carrying out this practice the great probability is, that a class of men get on juries who are often disqualified to fill so responsible a position, and of course are not profound thinkers, as they are chosen more for their ignorance than for their intelligence. At least this is the tendency of the system, and it has been discussed and censured so much that public attention has been called to it so that in some of the states legislative action has been had or contemplated in regard to it. This became absolutely necessary in consequence of the many absurd verdicts rendered by the class of know nothing jurors. There is much better opportunity of having justice done before a tribunal of intelligent men even if they have read all about a case which is brought before them, for their good, sense and self respect alike prompt them to be impartial and render a just decision, let their previous knowledge or prejudice be what they may, than before a tribunal of the contrary class who can only boast of ignorance as their chief qualification. We have not watched the proceedings of the Ohio legislature with that closeness which is necessary to know about what is transpiring in that body, but it is said that action in connection with this question has been taken, or soon will be, in favor of reforming the system of selecting juries. It is time that something of that sort were done—the growing intelligence of the times requires it, and if properly acted upon it will not fail to be an improvement over what has been a detriment to the cause of justice.

Petitions and protests are very common documents now visiting our legislature, if reports of their proceedings are reliable. The liquor party are pretty badly scared, and the reason why is, some of them have been hurt in the most sensitive part of their corpuses, the pocket. They are at work like beavers to get some of the stings taken out of the law, but the prayer of the wicked will not prevail, while the promise is that the petitions of the righteous will be heard. If our legislature is a body of just men, and we hope the majority is, they will have no difficulty in deciding who is right in this case. In behalf of liquor they have the appeals of sordid, heartless, cold blooded men, whose greatest god is money, and they worship him with undivided affection, as they know he is a jealous old reprobate, and if he can, will tolerate no rival. On the other hand there are thousands of earnest hearts, looking with longing eyes, and beseeching with heartfelt prayers that the temperance law of our state may not be emasculated, shorn of its strength, and made of no effect in behalf of the suffering everywhere. Can our legislators hesitate to act in favor of the right? Certainly they know what the right and justice is in this matter, for their consciences will tell them that But suppose they turn a deaf ear to the numerous prayers of their temperance constituents all over the state, we are persuaded that they will not and cannot turn aside with indifference from the following appeal. It is signed by four hundred and ninety-two convicts in the state prison, who confess that liquor placed them there, and by two hundred and seventy-four sent there by other causes. It is such an appeal that no man having a human heart can disregard.

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of Ohio:

GENTLEMEN—The undersigned convicts in the Ohio Penitentiary, knowing that the use of intoxicating liquors is the great source of crime, pauperism and suffering that prevails in the state, respectfully remonstrate against the repeal of the act passed April 18, 1870 'To amend sections seven and ten of an act to provide against the evils resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors in the state of Ohio,' passed May 1, 1854, or any such modification of said act as shall exempt from liability for damages the sellers of intoxicating liquors, or the owner of any building or premises where intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of law; or in any manner imparing the right of action for injuries resulting from intoxication as provided in said act.

Here are nearly 800 convicts, two-thirds of whom say they were sent there by this class of men who are now asking for, in effect, a repeal of that law, which, if its provisions had been rigidly enforced, would have kept them from their present ignominious degradation. It will be a sad thing for many of our legislators if they are deaf to such a prayer as this trumpet voice from the state prison.

Not a few of our politicians are solemnly agitated these days about a proposal for political reform. The prime moves in the proposed change seem to have originated in Missouri and to Carl Shuz, one of the U. S. senators of that state is, attributed the leadership. All who take a prominent part in it have been active, leading republicans. They allege that they are seeking to reform or advance the interests of the party in certain particulars and if these things can be done to advantage we see no use no in being frightened at the prospect. Ever since the formation of the republican party it has claimed to be in favor of advancement, and on this account boasted that it was unlike the democratic, stand still, or go backward party. It is true, caution and judgment are to be exercised in these things. But if men wish to advance, as they claim, their political status, it dont seem to us prudent or sagacious to impute to them evil motives, and hold them up as disorganizing schemers. That liberality which we as a people profess, especially that of the republican school, has no fears of evil results following the train of honest, sincere though they may be mistaken men. Time will remedy all this, and experience and obsvation have a mollifying influence in bringing all truly good men together. What seems to trouble some of our folks is, that they fear these movements will interfere with the course of the administration—that they will tend to prevent the renomination of president Grant. These movements dont annoy him; as far as we can see he is not near so much worried thereat as some of his pretended friends. It seems to us that the president is honest in his intentions, and if he errs—as who would not in his place—it is more through misfortune than design. Those who take a prominent part in this movement have called a national convention to be held at Cincinnati on the 6th of May next.

Contested seats in legislative bodies are, and have for a long time been, prominent features, and where interests clash, as they necessarily do in such cases the bad passions of men are often aroused to a high pitch of excitement. Congress is having a touch of this sort of unpleasant work—the legislature of Pennsylvania has had a lively time, of this nature, between Col McClure, a sort of doubting republican, and a Mr. Gray, who is considered sound. The political character of the legislature is such that McClure was defeated and his opponent comfirmed. But last Friday, if all accounts are true, the Ohio senate got ahead of any thing in this line. Two contestants for a seat in that body, Kemp, (dem) and Saylor (rep) raised a storm of excitement when the senate came to act in the case. Parties are so nearly equal, that one vote is sufficient to change the balance of power. When the time for voting arrived, Mr. Mueller, lieut. governor, and president of the Senate, decided, as a point of order that Mr. Kemp, the democrat, was not entitled to vote in his own case. Then the row began. The president was sworn at by the democrats, but he maintained his position, though it was difficult to preserve order in consequence of the turmoil. Then the democrats left the hall in a body, so that there was not a quorum left to transact business. The proper officers were sent to look up the runaways, and after their return a quorum was present, when the final vote was taken, which elected Sayler.

The Ohio Patriot of New Lisdon is now in its sixty-eighth year, having been established in 1808 by Wm D Lepper, and is among the oldest newspapers in this portion of the country. Mr. Lepper sold it to Joseph Cable about 1833; and since then the paper has been in different hands. T. S. Woods, Esq. purchased it in 1855 or 56, and retained possession till his death some four or five years ago. Since that time the paper sort of run itself, in the editorial way, and often was not what we think a paper should be. Recently Robert G. Woods, Esq, has come into full possession of the paper—outsiders thought he was proprietor for several years before, but it was a mistake—and since he has assumed the full responsibility of its control, the Patriot has vastly improved in many respects. It now reminds us of the palmy days of that venerable sheet, when Wm. D. Morgan was editor. Then the Patriot was a political power in the land, and one of the chief oracles of the democracy of Ohio. We hope Bro W. will continue in the way he has begun, and his paper will prosper, as well as be a credit to its editor and proprietor. The old Patriot of 1820, and along there, printed on pica and a little long primer, was a most familiar weekly visitor to the home of the writer of these lines, and not a few interesting associations are connected with its history of more than half a century ago. Then it scarcely ever exceeded one column of locals, but it was well filled with foreign news. Many old familiar rhymes appeared under "the seat of the muses," and in its miscellany were such stories as that of the Bellows Mender, a French production, and too many other things to note here.

Another excellent number of the Phrenological Journal is that of this month. Its table of contents indicate a rich treat for the reader. Written by the best of thinkers these essays are full of well expressed thought and lead the investigator to more and more exalted themes for reflection and examination. We notice that our old friend, Rev Wm Pittenger, now of New Jersey, has contributed another of a series of articles, entitled Protoplasm, or the mystery of physical life, in which he evinces a depth of thought that very few attain. It is a question which requires the powers of the best and wisest thinkers to elucidate, and so far as we can see, Mr P, has done justice to it—at least as far as man can do on so abseruse a subject. Other articles from different writers are entitled to consideration as connected with the philosophical teachings which the Journal is so well calculated to impart. S R Wells, published, N. Y.

We hope the government will take measures to thoroughly ventilate the rumors that several European states are engaged in sending their convict classes to this country, under a pledge never to return. We referred, a few weeks since to the discovery of an organized system, on the part of the English government, to send to us the worst of her criminals. Evidence is now brought to light which shows that several of the smaller German states,—particularly Mecklenburg Schwerin, Brunswick, Saxe-Weimar, go so far as to pardon criminals out of prison, that they may send them to this country. The reason doubtless is, that their fare to this country will cost less than their detention at home. The Mecklenburg News not only admits the facts, but claims the right of its government to export its criminals, in the absence of any treaty forbidding it. It ridicules the American papers a foolish for raising a hue cry about that which every European government has done for years past.' If a special treaty is needed to put a stop to this practice, the sooner it is entered into the better. It is to be hoped, however that an energetic protest on the part of the American officials residing in these countries will remedy an evil whose effects are every day becoming more and more apparent in this country. We have no more useful citizens as a class than those who have come here from abroad, but these are voluntary immigrants. We have no need of the involuntary class, and should not receive them. If detections could be made, the criminals referred to should be returned; at the expense of the government sending them.—Dispatch.

The scenes in the Ohio Senate on Friday afternoon and evening, and which were so graphically described in our dispatches of Saturday morning, require little comment. The democrats had staked their only hope on the issue of that contest, and when they were out voted and defeated they forgot the decencies of official decorum, and behaved like brawlers in a pot house. "D—— the President. He may take the senate and go to h—l with it," shrieked the ramp Putnam as he left his seat. "Go to h—l with your Senate," shouted senator Patrick to the Lieutenant Governor in the midst of the debate. The respectable men of Ohio, republicans and democrats, resent and condemn this disgraceful brawl. The state feels that its honor has been stained and its fair name compromised by such language in its senate chamber, and it should be the first duty of the senate to resent the insult offered to its presiding officer. Before Messrs. Putnam and Patrick are again admitted to their seats, let them be made to swallow their profanity at the bar of the Senate.—Leader.

Congressman Beatty, of this state, has introduced a resolution into Congress to abolish the old dust trap known as the Congressional Globe. Good! Push the question to a fair, open vote, then give us the names of the members who vote against the resolution. The country wants to know who are the vain, weak men who insist upon saddling the treasury with a heavy bill of expense each year in order that they may print long winded speeches that they never delivered, and which no one but themselves will read.—Leader.

Omaha, February 18.—Five trains leaving Omaha from Jan eighteenth to February first, arrived at Ogden to day. Passengers are complaining bitterly of the treatment and suffering along the road. Reports from the snow blockade district say no more trains passed through, and no trains are yet at Rawlings from the west. Wind high and more snow falling at Medicine Bow.

A Practical Civil Service Reform.—President Grant has a practical way of setting about civil service reform which is not acceptable to office holders of a certain description or to those who are simply political reformers. When the rascalities of the general order business were proved to his satisfaction, the president went to the root of the evil by ordering the abolition of the system. Now that the abuses existing in the New York custom house are exposed, he wastes no time in beating about the bush, but bags his game at once by ordering the United States District Attorney to proceed against every officer who has shown to have had a bribe laid against every person who has offered to bribe an official. Grant deals with dishonest public employes as he dealt with the southern rebels—he marches directly on their lines. At this rate the growlers who abuse the president had better be contented to remain out of office.—Herald.

Jeff Davis appears to be as unfortunate as General Grant in having very indiscreet friends, who assume to be his special champions. Almost forgotten scandal, which never attracted much attention, has been revived by the action of an ex confederate general of the name D. H Maury, who entered a sleeping car on the Charleston railroad at Chattanooga a few nights ago, and asked the conductor if he had circulated those lies about Mr. Davis? The conductor responded, "I am the man who told what you refer to;" upon which the general stepped back and put his hand behind him—a motion which in Tennessee is understood to mean business. A lively fracas ensued the conductor using a poker as his weapon; and the general was finally removed from the car in a senseless condition. It is thought that his injuries are likely to prove fatal.

L. S. & T. V. R. R.

The great pressure of business upon this railroad is unprecedented in the history of any railroad enterprise in this section, at least. It has but just reached the northern verge of the coal fields through which its line is projected, and before it is in any sort prepared for its transportation, it is obliged to bring to market, trains of coal every day. On Tuesday forty-five cars of coals were drawn to Messrs. Card & Babcock from the Silver Creek mines in Chippewa township, Wayne county. This is the largest coal train ever seen in this city, and it is but the shadow of coming events, for the country from these mines to New Philadelphia and beyond, is but a continuous coal and iron field, affording ten times as much freight of that kind as the Cleveland & Mahoning road.

Already a passenger transportation is forced on it that it has not sought, and cannot said to be ready for. The people along the line would ride upon it before a coach could be sent out. They got upon the engine and the tender, and they thought themselves fortunate if they could find a seat upon a construction train. One coach attached to a freight train is now run, leaving Seville every morning and returning there at evening, and is earning $40 a day, even in that short distance.

The fact is that it is disappointing its most sanguine projectors, and when completed will prove a richly paying investment to stockholders and a bountiful contributor to the wealth, not only of Cleveland, but of all the region through which it is located.

The severity of the weather prevents direct work upon the track, but the engineers are busy, and ties and other material are being got in readiness for a rapid push as soon as the frost leaves the ground.—Cleveland Herald.

CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

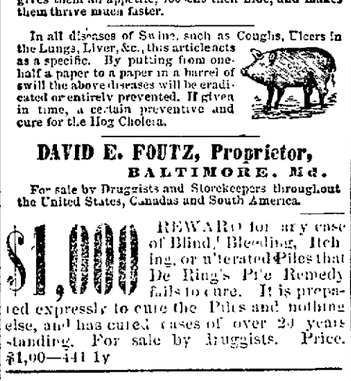
A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to the Wonderful Curative Effects of DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS



J. WALKER Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co., Druggists and Gen. Ag'ts, San Francisco, Cal., and 32 and 34 Commerce St, N.Y.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful.

Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erisipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores, cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

A Beautiful woman. The perceptive faculty of woman is usually keener than the same phrenological organ in men. Women know that beauty rather than genius is worshipped by the sterner sex. A man may talk of the latter to his lady love, but the keenness of the woman knows that he is thinking of the former. d o admiration; hence one of their longings is to be beautiful. The grand secret of female beauty is health, the power to eat, digest and assimilate a proper quantity of wholesome food. Take Vinegar Bitters, which will cleanse the stomach, tone the vital organs give a perfect digestion, purify the blood clear up the complexion and produce a state of mental and phisical electricity, which gives symmetry of form, bright eyes, white skin, glossy hair and a genuine type of female loveliness, which no cosmetic can produce. 4w

Geology, zoology and other subjects will be elucidated by appropriate explanations of the microscope and stereopticon, illuminated by hydro-oxygen and magnisium lights. Every one who would learn some of the most interesting phenomena of nature should attend these lectures. Prof. E's lectures are commended in the highest terms by leading papers and distinguished men in the east as well as the west. $1.00 pays for the course—single admission 35 cents.

Those ladies of the M. E. church seem never to tire in works of benevolence, and the sex in other churches are very much like them. What our Methodist sisters are at just now is, the raising of means to purchase a good sewing machine for a poor and worthy widow, in order to aid her to obtain a living. For this purpose a meeting of the mite society will be held on next Friday evening at the residence of Mr. L. S. Hardy, to which all are cordially invited. Let a generous response be made to this call.

According to announcement, Prof. Davis gave an interesting scientific entertainment in the M. E. church, on Thursday evening. A large audience was present to witness the exhibition of the Planetelles. Some derangement of the planetary moons prevented the full working of this remarkable instrument. The various illustrations, as they were thrown upon the canvas, presented a beautiful appearance—one in particular, the Nebulae or star clusters, called forth repeated approbation. The representation of brilliant views of battle scenes, cascades, landscapes, statuary, flowers of brilliant colors, etc., rendered it a very pleasant and instructive entertainment, Were we to suggest an improvement, it would be that the Prof assume more the style of teacher and less of the tone of preacher. The entertainment was a success and all appeared well satisfied.

We notice that Bro. Allen, one of the earnest, sincere, radical, Methodist democrats in this region of country, offers for sale his paper, the Steubenville Gazette Although we don't hitch on politics we esteem Bro. Allen as one of the good, honest and upright of men, and if he leaves the editorial profession it will create a vacancy not easy to fill.

One of the directors of the Ohio penitentiary, has placed us under obligations for the annual report of that institution for 1871. By this document we see that there were 955 convicts at the close of the year, 45 less than the year before, and 86 less than in 1868. A list of the number of inmates is given for each year, commencing with 1834, when there were 187, since which time there has been a gradual increase annually. 346 convicts were received last year, and the time of 314 expired. 68 are in for life, one of whom is from Stark.

In consequence of the freezing of so many—indeed nearly all—the hydrants in town the present winter, naturally suggests the inquiry, What shall be done to prevent its recurrence hereafter? The main pipes are not frozen, as they are probably deeper than the hydrants, and then the water is continually moving in them. Several newly constructed hydrants were put in place last season, with the idea, it was said, of being less liable to freeze than the other, but they are all as tight as the rest. Planting them deeper in the ground, and having a waste hole below the freezing point—or some device to keep water out of them when not in use—seems to be the only way to avert their being closed up in such cold winters as the present.

We have often taken occasion to refer to the Advance in terms of commendation and since it has risen renewed and enlarged after the late calamitous Chicago fire, it but enhances itself in the esteem and good wishes of its friends. Everything connected with the paper is of an encouraging character, and its editors and proprietors deserve the encouragement of its hosts of patrons, who so promptly came to its aid in time of need.

At the election for officers of the Y. M. C. A. of this place, last Saturday evening, for the ensuing year, Bro. Dean, rector of the Episcopal church of this city, very pleasantly and pertinently suggested that universal suffrage ought to prevail in that body, and that the ladies take part in the election. But on reading the constitution on that point, it was found the word male restricted the voting to one sex. To say the least this is unfortunate; and a member as we understood, gave notice that the constitution should be so changed as to allow women as well as men to vote for officers. As in other days when the slavery question agitated the nation, no matter what came up, or when, in public affairs, there was always the inevitable nigger. Now the programme is changed—the woman inevitably comes in, which is a sure presage that universal suffrage is coming.

Mr N. Taylor, of this place has constructed a very convenient little device, which if brought into general use, will prove a great saving of coal, besides preventing dust or fine ashes from flying all over a room. It consists of a plain box, inside of which is a sieve, so arranged when filled with ashes and half consumed coal, as to be shaken, while the lid is closed, permitting only the ashes to pass through the sieve, and retain the coal and coke, which, if placed on the fire will throw out as much heat as when first put there, but with less blaze. Of course the ashes fall to the bottom of the box, which should be kept closed a few moments after the sifting, so not a particle of dust will be seen flying around to soil carpet, furniture or anything in the room. The sieve can be as fine as desired A little observation will tell anybody that a very large portion of our coal is wasted, which a simple contrivance of this kind will make available for use.

We regret to state that the condition of Bro. Williams' health continues such that he is unable to preach, though he is much better than he was a few days ago. His affliction is of a somewhat serious character, so his physician is impressed, and it may be some time ere he will be able to resume ministerial duties.

Ladies white hose two pair for a quarter at Ricks'.

From some cause our patrons have occasion not unfrequently to complain of the loss of papers, when there is no mistake but that they have been delivered at their proper places. When a man pays for his paper he is as much entitled to it as he is to his horse or his house; but what the matter in this case is, that there are possibly those who wont pay for the papers they read—are so anxious to see what is in them, that they, without asking, borrow of those who are patrons, and make it convenient to never return them. This class of readers, we have often had occasion to say, are the hardest to please—always finding fault—everything is wrong with them. Every community has such inflictions.

The friends and supporters of the Y M C A of this place had a very pleasant and encouraging time, commencing on Saturday evening, and continuing over Sunday It was the anniversary of the association, and of course a favorable occasion for the exercises which were engaged in.

Several gentlemen of Cleveland, who are earnestly and persistently engaged in the work of sustaining the Y M C A of their city and elsewhere, were present, and actively participated at all the meetings during their stay with our people. Saturday evening the annual election was held at Disciples church, and a considerable number of our citizens, in addition to members of the association, were present. Dr. Watson, treasurer, read the annual report of the finances which indicates that this part of the business is in a healthy condition. After which the election of officers was attended to, resulting, mainly, in the choice of the old board. We have not all the names, but remember that J K Merwin was re-chosen president, with several vice presidents, J J Hoover, secretary, Dr Watson, treasurer. These gentlemen have performed their duties satisfactorily, and the disposition was decided to keep them in official service another year. After the transaction of this part of the business brief remarks were made by different gentlemen present, the Cleveland visitors taking a prominent part. Singing and prayer were part of the proceedings at different intervals, so that some two hours were spent in work in behalf of the organization. Adjourned to meet at 10-30 Sunday morning at M E church.

At the time and place designated a large concourse of people met together, and instead of the regular preaching, brief, pertinent and encouraging speeches were made, principally by visitors from elsewhere. These speeches were short and varied, which tended to keep up the interest—of course singing and prayers were interspersed at suitable intervals. Perhaps some two hours were spent in this intervier, when the meeting adjourned to again convene at the Presbyterian church, at 2 o'clock p. m.

At the appointed hour the church was well filled, a large portion present consisting of Sunday school children and their teachers, as this meeting was to be directed in their behalf. Devotional exercises formed part of the programme this afternoon, consisting of singing and prayer, which were followed by brief addresses from different gentlemen, of course of a highly evangelical character—as it is that basis on which the association is founded. The meeting was concluded after nearly two hours, during which the interest seemed unabated, with the understanding that another gathering was to take place in the evening at the M E church.

At the appointed hour the house was well filled with people of various denominations. At this meeting were the business proceedings, of course interspersed with singing, prayer, exhortation and entreaty. To aid in promoting the interests of the association some $250 were raised—a very encouraging condition of the case. Very general satisfaction pervaded all these meetings, and the organization in whose behalf they were held will go on its way rejoicing, and we hope do all the good it can.

It is evident that the days are lengthening for nine o'clock soon comes in the evening. In a month the days and nights will be of equal length—the days are now about 10 hours and 40 minutes.

On Monday the Pittsburgh Dispatch published by Rook & O'Niel, appeared decorated with new type all over. This is proof that the well established paper is prospering and meets with deserving liberal patronage.

The good old pump near the store of McLain, Dangler & Co, after a suspension of several months, was repaired and set a going one day last week. For years it was a standing, known institution, always at its post and ever ready by its eloquent spouting to slake the thirst of its numerous visitors. And of the vast number who have quenched their drouth there none have staggered away inspired to commit crime by the inspirations its pure liquor—God made—as do the patrons of other drinking places.

MOTHERS, BEWARE!

Since the advent of Dr. Hoofland's Celebrated Bitters into this country—which was more than thirty years ago—and as soon as their potent influence in curing and preventing disease become thoroughly established, and their lucrative advantages to the proprietor became apparent, quack doctors and whisky dealers, stimulated with a desire more to replenish their purses, than become benefactors of mankind, mixed up various compounds, calling them bitters, and advertising them for curing the same diseases for which Hoofflands remedies has become so noteworthy. Some of these compounds are decoctions of Aloes, Calomel, and other drastic purgatives, while the most numerous are decoctions of some bitter substance mixed up with rum, whisky or alcohol, and flavored with aromatics, to please the taste; well calculated to lead the unsuspecting health seeker into the snare of intemperance. Many a cheerful mother plying her daily household cares, her rosy cheeks fading to a sickly hue, her mental and physical powers giving away, sees a restorative like Hoofland's Bitters, but luckilessly obtains one of the whisky compounds, and by taking it plants the seeds of intemperance in her offspring's breast, and fits it for a drunkard's grave.

Mothers, beware, and remember that Hoofland's German Bitters contains no spirituous liquor of any kind, and are not in any respect deleterious, but will relieve the varied diseases incident to nervous prostration and general derangement of the system.

Yes and Neighs.—If horses could make themselves understood in human language, they would signify by universal yea, their assent to the statement that the Mustang Liniment is the best remedy extant for all these external ailments, and by most emphatic neigh! show their displeasure at every attempt to use any other preparation in its stead. Ever since its introduction at St. Louis, at the close of the Mexican War, in 1849, it has proved a signal blessing to horse and man—curing, with absolute certainty and wonderful dispatch, such equine diseases as spavin, ringbone, poll evil, scratches, hoofale, &c., and relieving and finally removing the painful affections which attack the muscles, sinews and external glands of human beings. It is a fact beyond contradiction that for all injuries or complaints of man or quadrupeds to which an external remedy is applicable, the Mustang Liniment is preferable to every other.

Sinking Slowly.

Diseases that progress rapidly so a crisis are not the only ones to be dreaded. Canker or dry rot does not blast a tree as suddenly as a stroke of lightning, but unless arrested it destroys it as certainly; and in like manner chronic disease, although it does not kill with the swiftness of yellow fever, is as sure to sap the springs of life by invigorating medication. There is something inexpressibly touching in the spectacle of premature decay. Languor pallor, emaciation, depression of spirits, and a distaste for exertion, are its ordinary symptoms, and they should be promptly met by tonic treatment. The best invigorant and exhilerant that can be administered in a case of this kind is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters The stimulating principle of the preparation rouses the dormant energies of the system, and the strengthening and regulating properties give a permanent and healthful impulse to the vital forces thus brought into play. The failing appetite is re-awakened, the quality of the blood is improved, the secretions become more natural, and every organ that contributes to the nourishment of the body undergoes salutary change. By these means the repair of the physical structure is effected and its health and vigor restored. In no class of diseases has the beneficent operation of the Bitters been more marked and striking than in those characterized by general debility and nervous prostration. Ladies affected with these ailments find in this most wholesome of all tonics and correctives the safest and surest means of relief. It is strong to restore and powerless to injure. Such is the testimony of "crowds of witnesses." 443—1w

Troubles are dreadful bores, so long as we are visited by them; but it is pleasant to laugh at them as soon as they are gone.

The barometer is not proud, because it is up to-day, nor will it be low, should it happen to be down to morrow. Man, if he were wise, would take a lesson from this.

A headache is the hatband of some departed pleasure.

To cure the toothache—Let an omnibus run over your foot.

'William,' said a teacher to one of his pupils, 'can you tell me why the sun rises in the east?' 'Don't know, sir; 'cept that it be that 'east makes everything rise.' Teacher fainted.

An old bachelor says that if a young lady has a purse with two ends—silver in one, and gold in the other—she is sure to open the gold end first.

'Jerome!' screamed Mrs Butterfield, the other day, to her biggest boy, 'what are you throwing to those pigeons?' 'Gold beads, mother, and the fools are eatin' 'em; I s'pect they think it's corn!'

A gentleman asked a lady the other day why so many tall gentlemen were bachelors? The reply was, they were obliged to lie cornerwise in bed to keep their feet in, and that a wife would be in the way.

When will a ship yield the largest crop? When she's a-ground.

The commissioners appointed to take testimony as to the value of the old postoffice block in Chicago heard several real estate owners and agents the other day. One gentleman placed the value of the square at $1,029,000.

At one of his lectures, George F. Train shouted: 'Now, then, anybody can ask me questions.' Whereupon an old lady got up and said: 'Mr Train I would like to know what makes a pot leg always burn in two in the middle?' The great American traveler was nonpulssed.

An Irishman working on an old stone wall picked up what he supposed to be his neighbor's kitten. He dropped it and clapping his hands to his face cried, 'Howly mother what has the thing been ating.'

A pious but uneducated judge closed a sentence with the following touching reproach: 'Prisoner at the bar, nature has endowed you with a good education and respectable family connections, instead of which you go prowling around the country stealing ducks.'

Fanny Fern writes with reference to the expensive toys now in vogue: 'The doll of my bib days was a crooked necked squash, with a towel for a dress, and numerous progeny of little cucumbers for babies, and I was just as happy, and a great deal better contented, than a little girl to day with a $100 Paris doll.

The spring trade is opening favorably in New York. The January sales this year were twice those of last year. The Post says: In spite of the many discouraging obstacles in the way of trade during the last six months, we have it on the best authority that thus far the trade this year has been greatly in advance of that of the same period in 1871.

'Hould aisy, Mike,' said one of the two pedestrians, as he approached a mile stone. 'Thred lightly,' said he, 'for here lies a very ould man.' Pat carefully spelled out the inscription. Baltimore, 154 miles,' and then he continued: 'He was 154 years ould and his name was, Miles, from Baltimore. Poor ould man!'.

A traveler in Arkansas found the following notice stuck on the ferryman's door at Cache river. "Noatis Ef any boddy comes hear arter licker or to get akross the river, they can gas blow this hear horn, and ef I don't cum when my Betsy up at the Hous hears the horn a blowin' shele cum down and sell them licker, and set them across the river, ime away from hoam jonn wilson. N B them that can't rede will have to go to the Hous arter Betsy taint but half a mile thar."

Hon James Brooks writes to the New York Express, describing the Malay divers; 'We are just entering the British city of Singapore. Our first novelty is the Malay divers, who in little boats, are swarming about our steamer, and diving after every six pence or penny we threw overboard—sure to get them, too, before they reach the bottom. They are the most wonderful swimmers and divers I ever saw, and one cannot help emptying one's pockets to see them after the coin. These swarms of swimmers seem to fill the water all around us, and their cries and clamors and intent earnestness in watching the passengers throw over their coin can hardly be described.'

A recent writer, treating of Russian customs, gives some facts which deprive the Americans of their exclusive claim to the habit of rapid eating. The Russian take one third of his meal standing at one table, and then sits down at another to finish; both operations being dispatched with all possible expedition, eating being the only thing which a Russian does in a hurry. Luncheon bars are said to be almost as bad for the health as the liquor bars. The mischief of rapid eating is enhanced by an erect posture No doubt a great deal of the indigestion now so generally complained of, results from hasty swallowing of food. Time saved in such a way is worse than time lost.

AMERICAN WASHER!

PRICE, $5.50.

The American Washer saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no longer dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting. It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a quilt to a lace curtain or cambric handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the Little Gem! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once become fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldly, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this great labor saver, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly. Sole agents for the United States.

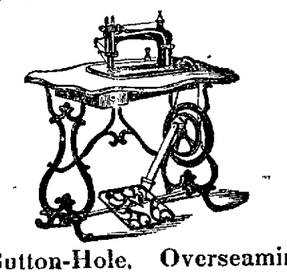
THE IMPROVED AMERICAN:



Button-Hole, Overseaming,

—AND—

Complete Sewing Machine.

The first and only Button-hole and Sewing machine combined that has made its advent in this or any other country.

Family Machine to Purchase

1. Because it will do everything that any machine can do, sewing from the finest to the coarsest material, hemming, felling, cording, braiding, binding, gathering and sewing on at the same time, ruffling, quilting, &c, better than any other machine.
2. Because the tensions are more easily adjusted than any other machine.
3. Because it can make a beautiful button hole, making as fine a pearl as by hand.
4. Because it will embroider over the edge, making a neat and beautiful border on any garment.
5. Because it will make a beautiful eyelet hole
6. Because it can do overhand seaming, by which sheets, pillow cases, and the like are sewed over and over.
7. Because you can quickly raise or lower the feed to adapt it to thick or thin cloth.
8. Because you have a short deep bobbin by which the thread is constantly drawn from the center; the tension is consequently even and does not break the thread.
9. Because the presser foot turns back; that the cloth can be easily removed after being sewed.
10. Because the best mechanics pronounce it the best finished and made on the best principle of any machine manufactured.
11. Because it has a better shuttle than any other machine.
12. Because it runs easier and quieter than any other heavy machine.
13. Because it is two machines in one—a button hole working and sewing machine combined.

It is to last a lifetime, and therefore one is wanted that will do the most work, and do it the best, and this machine can do several kinds of sewing not done on any other machine, besides doing every kind that all others can do.

The American or Plain Sewing Machine

Is a beautiful family and light manufacturing machine, possessing all the superior qualities of the combined machine, except making button holes and overseaming. In all other respects the principal of construction is the same.

These Machines are Warranted.

Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Orchitis, Hernia or Rupture, all Urinary Diseases and Syphilitic or Mercurial Affections of the Throat, Skin or Bones are treated with unparalleled success.

Spermatorrhœa, Sexual Debility and Impotency, as the result of solitudes in youth, sexual excesses in mature years, or other causes, and which produce some of the following effects, as Nocturnal emissions, blotches, debility, dizziness, dimness of sight, confusion of ideas, evil forebodings, aversion to society of females, loss of memory and sexual power rendering marriage improper, are permanently cured.
